MAYOR RECEIVES REPLY TO LETTER

Clearly Shown That City's Rights to Waters of South Fork Are Not in Dispute, But That the Privilege of Storing Water For Irrigation Purposes Is the Sole Question at Issue—Water Should Not Be Allowed to Run to Waste.

The following correspondence has passed between Mayor A. G. Fell and Wm. Glasmann:

Ogden, Utah, August 16, 1912.

"William Glasmann, President Ogden River Reservoir Co.
"Dear Sir—Your letter of the 14th inst., addressed to the Mayor and City Commissioners of Ogden City, has been received and contents carefully considered and informally discussed with the Commissioners.

"I assure you that the Ogden City Commissioners are fully alive to the importance of the farmers having water in abundance to safeguard their maturing crops. We also fully appreciate the great advantage that will naturally accrue to Ogden City through the amply supply of water, and feel that we would fall far short of our moral obligations to the community should we neglect to fully consider their interests in connection with the city.

"In the judgment of the Commissioners Ogden City should have, before expending any money to construct a dam, the absolute title free from any claim whatever upon the land upon which the dam is to be constructed, as well as the land upon which the water is to be impounded.

"I am advised that the deed executed by Mr. Perry conveying title to this property contained certain reservations therein that would, of necessity, have to be removed before Ogden City could, with any assurance of having pure water for its inhabitants, use the same for impounding water.

"Whatever may be the present status of the title upon which bedrock has been exposed, it is unquestionably the general understanding among the people that at the time the work was done by the city to locate bedrock, that the city owned the property upon which its money was being expended.

"Possibly after the dam has been constructed and a sufficient amount of water impounded for the use of Ogden City, that arrangements could be made with those having rights in the waters of South Fork to increase the height of the dam, so as to impound additional water, upon making of satisfactory arrangements with the city for the use of its dam and the reservoir site upon which the additional water would be impounded, and doubtless the city, in putting in the foundation of the superstructure, would make it of sufficient strength so that additional height could be added to the dam and water furnished to other residents wishing water from that source. But as indicated above, the city would not feel disposed, and we do not see how it could at this time, enter into any contract binding itself to any joint agreement or joint arrangement.

"The Commissioners think that they would not be justified in an absolute ownership of the dam site, the necessary easements of it to impound water, and be in position to control absolutely without interference from any one the water impounded by its dam, and freely use that water for any purpose it might desire without being subject to any other interference that might be made looking to the additional use of the foundation and superstructure by Ogden City could only be after the city has constructed a dam and its work among the young people in his charge.

Nearly 500 booklets containing a sketch of the bishop's life were given out as souvenirs and in each booklet was inserted a photograph of Bishop McQuarrie.

The sketch of Bishop McQuarrie's life was written by himself and is as follows:
August 17, 1832, I was born in the highlands of Scotland, Bruntyn, North Knapdale, Argyshire, and raised in the lowlands (Renfrewshire). When not at school, I was on the farm with my grandfathers, law and trained to farm life until I was 25 years of age.

I became acquainted with the Gospel by reading the "Only Way to Be Saved," by Lorenzo Snow, a tract that came accidentally into my hands when about 20 years of age. I was convinced of its truth when I had read the tract through. I found myself converted to the Gospel before I heard an Elder preach. I was baptized when 21 years of age, in 1853 by Elder Robert Baxter of Wells-ville, Cache county, in the River Clyde, October 9, and confirmed the same day by the same elder. In 1857, four years after baptism, I emigrated to America with father, mother, two brothers and two sisters, namely: Nell, John Agnes and Mary. Nell was baptized before we left home. The rest were not baptized until after our arrival in Ogden.

I arrived in Boston Bay, April 20, 1861, and left Boston on the 23rd. I was delighted with the scenery of Boston Bay and harbor and with the spirit of liberty and freedom. I reached Iowa on the first of May and left on the first of June for the plains in Jesse B. Martin's company of 31 wagons.

I arrived in Salt Lake City, September 12, 1857, remaining there one week. I entered Ogden, September 22, and found the people engaged in military drill, preparing to meet the Johnson army, then on its way to Utah. My first labor performed was to join the militia and go to training with the rest. When it became known that the army was destined to come to Salt Lake City, we were all ordered to move to the south. Hence, on the 5th day of April, 1858, all my father's family moved south as far as Payson. I remained in Ogden in connection with the 150 men detailed to guard the property and take care of the crops. The people returned or were ordered back to their homes on July 1. On the 4th, the men detailed for guard service were dismissed.

I was married April 29, 1860, to Mena Funk.

March 19, 1855, I was ordained a teacher, under the hands of Archibald McPhail, president of Greenock branch of the Glasgow conference, and went to visiting June 15, 1856. I was ordained a priest under the hands of George P. Ward. I continued my labors among the saints as a visiting teacher, and was ordained a Seventy, February 17, 1859, in the 60th quorum, by L. J. Herrick. On April 13, 1862, I received a call to take a mission to the British Isles, setting out May 1 with Albert Carrington and company. May 22 I was sent to Glasgow to release John Pyper, and June 5 to Jarrold on Tyne, where I released James A. Leishman in the Newcastle conference, June 24, 1873. I presided over the Glasgow conference until released May 30, 1874.

December 4, 1862, I was set apart second counselor to Bishop L. J. Herrick, laboring in this connection for seven years. February 20, 1870, I was called to preside over the Ogden Second district until May 28, 1877, when the district was organized into a ward, and I was ordained bishop, serving 25 years to date. During the period of 42 years, I had ten counselors, namely: Mark Hall, Charles F. Middleton, Thomas Dwyer, Samuel Eggleston, James Burch, W. G. Gibson, John Scowcroft, George Shorten, Heber Scowcroft and Charles J. A. Lindquist, five of whom died—Hall, Dwyer, Eggleston, Scowcroft and Child. Two were promoted—C. F. Middleton to the stake presidency and Heber Scowcroft to the stake Sunday school board and afterwards to the high council. James Burch moved to the First ward, and two are still in active service, namely: George Shorten and Charles J. A. Lindquist.

There have been eighty-five missionaries sent into the field, according to record, including the twelve now in the field, none of the missionaries having died while away from home.

"Very Respectfully Yours,
(Signed) "A. G. FELL, Mayor."

Wm. Glasmann's Reply.

"A. G. Fell, Mayor, Ogden, Utah.
"Dear Sir—In reply to your letter of the 16th inst., will say I cannot furnish a better title to the land I purchased in the South Fork canyon than I received, and as you do not want that, I am willing to keep it. You do not wish to join us in the building of the dam; you have that right. You say, 'It was unquestionably the general understanding that at the time the work was done by the city to locate bedrock that the city owned the property on which the work was done.' You are mistaken, because the newspaper announced that the city was doing the work on the property of M. S. Browning and Alexander Brewer. It was also so stated at the public meeting, and also in the city council.

"You say, 'Possible arrangements could be made with those having rights in the water of the South Fork to increase the height of the dam so as to impound additional water, upon the making of satisfactory arrangements with the city for the use of its dam.' That leaves the matter very doubtful. I am willing to let the city build its dam, even on my ground, and I shall make no charge for such use, provided arrangements can be made by the South Fork Reservoir company to enlarge the dam. Surely such arrangements can be made before the dam is built, if the city itself really wants to build the dam. I already have offered to let your attorney draw the contract to protect the city, in any way that is fair and reasonable. I further am willing to give the city the absolute ownership of the dam site and deed my land to the city, if the city will in turn lease to our company the right to impound such waters as the city cannot use.

"I wish to assure you that our company is ready to enter into a binding contract to recognize the city's first and prior rights in the South Fork canyon. Our company does not claim anything that lawfully and legally belongs to the city and we are ready to sign binding agreements to that effect. We do, however, claim to own a water right in the South Fork canyon that is senior to subsequent to any water right the city may own. That is all we claim and we shall maintain the same.

"We have offered all we can consistently, and at the same time protect our own rights. More we cannot offer. Our company only claims the surplus water for irrigation purposes—nothing more.

"Now let me ask just one question, Mr. Fell. Why do you object to this company storing water for irrigation purposes? Do you want the water to continue to flow in a wasteful stream to the Great Salt Lake? You know the city cannot impound water for any other than city purposes. You know the water that will be impounded by our company will not interfere with any water the city can lawfully use. Then why do you oppose this company doing that which the law gives it a right to do?"

GREAT TIMBER BELT IN IDAHO

Professor G. B. McDonald of the Iowa State college is in the city after a reconnaissance of the timber belts of the Payette forest in Idaho. Mr. McDonald is assistant professor for forestry in the forest department and was temporarily assigned to this district a short time ago. He will soon depart for his home in Ames, Iowa.

In his researches of the past few weeks in the Idaho section of country he reported on 110,000,000 feet of merchantable timber.

ENTERING THE EMPLOY OF UNCLE SAM

The agricultural and other colleges of the country each year furnish a number of young men for the forest service. These beginners are given positions in the various forest districts as assistants under the direction of the forest supervisors. Those who reported last evening to the district headquarters under assignments to forest reserves of the district and will leave today for their various fields of labor are:

John C. Roak of the Pennsylvania has been assigned to the Manti forest, with headquarters at Ephraim.

Fred S. Baker of the Colorado also will be placed at the Ephraim headquarters. Mr. Roak will take up the service in the direction of general forestry research and Mr. Baker will be given a position with the Utah experiment station.

Raymond B. Garver of the Nebraska university and William B. Rice of the Yale forest department have been assigned to the Fish Lake forest in Sevier county. They will take up a reconnaissance of the quaking asp and spruce timber belts of that section, with a view to furnishing additional information regarding the making of paper pulp in this state. They left for the southern country today.

It is stated that others from eastern colleges and forest schools will appear at Ogden headquarters within a short time for assignment to the different forests of the district.

MUCH ACTIVITY IN FOREST SERVICE

District Forester E. A. Sherman states that there is considerable activity in the forests of his districts at this time. Reconnaissance work is being prosecuted by experts in the timber and grazing department and the general field work is being given a great deal of attention.

Congress, finally coming to the aid of the forest service department, in the allowance of the regular funds has given new life to the workers and it appears that much good will be accomplished before the season is over.

Rain fall has been unusually heavy in all sections of the mountain country and the timber and grass are so well moistened that it is not likely that fires will be started and that if they do start, they will not spread.

Homer Fenn, in charge of the grazing department, has returned from the Fillmore national forest where he spent the past few weeks investigating grazing. He states that conditions at this time of the year have never been better. Ranges are good and all kinds of stock are fat. The winter range will be good because of the recent rains in the desert country, both east and west of Fillmore. Most of the winter range in that locality is west of Fillmore, where lava beds and cedar lands are to be found and where white sage and bunchgrass abound.

Assistant Forester Timothy Hoyt of the land department of the local office and F. L. Hardy of the lands department of Washington, D. C., returned last evening from a three weeks' trip to the Boise, Targhee and Palisade forests in Idaho.
